

Lancaster Laboratories' LabAccess provides clients on-line access to their data

LANCASTER, Pa., October 11, 2007—Lancaster Laboratories has launched its innovative web portal LabAccess which offers pharmaceutical clients a secure on-line window to comprehensive analytical information as their project progresses. With LabAccess, pharmaceutical clients may view extensive project information such as analysts' notebooks, chromatograms, approved test results, Certificates of Analysis, raw data packages and invoices.

"Convenient and timely access to project information as well as multiple points of contact throughout the contract laboratory organization for our clients are critical to project success," says Dr. Timothy S. Oostdyk, Lancaster Laboratories executive vice president and chief operating officer. "At Lancaster Labs, we've built what we believe to be the most comprehensive range of technical capabilities and regulatory expertise in contract analytical services. Ultimately, delivering our product to clients in the most proficient way is paramount. And LabAccess takes open communication to a new level." LabAccess is available 24/7 to all Lancaster Laboratories clients who have a valid e-mail address in the Lancaster Laboratories LIMS system. Clients interested in procuring their secure LabAccess account may visit www.labaccess.com.